

LOUISVILLE JOURNAL
PUBLISHED AND PENSASSED AT PRENTICE, HENDERSON, & OSBORN, Green street, between Third and Fourth.

MONDAY, MARCH 26, 1862.

The editor of the Yankee (a little secessionist weekly paper at Frankfort) is passing for notoriety, and endeavoring according to abstract our attention by making dirty slings at the Journal, associating it with its senior editor with names of individuals whose conduct has been, during the time, the subject of the most ingenuous discussion in our columns. Several days ago we received from the Yankee, and commented upon it in printing terms, showing the names of the unscrupulous demagogues who, under the assumed name of "Democrat," are laboring to organize the secessionists who remained in the State during the war and the rebels who have returned to Kentucky since, into a separate party. The character of this new organization cannot be designated on the thoughtful and intelligent minds in the State, who very properly regard it as a front for their enemies.

The movement originated in the purpose to keep up the distinction between Union Democrats and secession Democrats, and to vindicate secessionism as the true test of Democracy, the leaders of the movement still believing, as they have declared repeatedly during the last five years, that the heart of Kentucky has been from the beginning of the war in favor of secession and secession principles.

They hold that, during the war, the people were not allowed to express their views openly as to the merits of the secession.

Hence, "Democrats" in the State have come when they can speak out boldly in vindication of the men who took up arms against the Government.

Thus the call for the 1st of May convention, in which, as it is well known, the secessionists alone will participate.

One part of the programme of these unscrupulous men is to void all expressions condemnatory of the rebellion, while they constantly denounce the struggle on the part of the Government, as "a war of plunder, of despair, and ruin."

The whole contention rests upon this point, that, if these presumptions and impudent men who, having accepted the amnesty of the Government, are now abusing the privileges granted them by endeavoring to defame those who labored to maintain the Republic against the secession rebel.

The spirit of these secession leaders, as we have indicated it, is extremely prevalent in the ranks of the Frankfort Yankees, a paper in which we have never seen an expression condemnatory of the rebellion, and all who so characterize the war in behalf of the Union as "a war of plunder, of devastation, and rain."

For instance, in response to our suggestion that the secessionists and refined rebels of Kentucky should identify themselves with the conservative Union men of the State instead of forming for themselves a separate and hostile party, the editor of the Yankees has written one who "hounded on a rapacious lure to glory, and rob our citizens or those who favored on the spoils of the outcome they engaged in, and infinitely prefer to be in a convention of Democrats, and to have "the earnest men," as the Yankees call them, and their latter affiliation might acquire the political and social prestige of the radicals of the North.

The spirit of these unscrupulous men is gratuitous and unmanly task in endeavoring to arouse prejudice against the senior editor of the Journal by associating his name with the names of persons who are odious to the masses of Kentucky. The junior editor will be allowed to say that the people of Kentucky know full well how sincerely and constantly Mr. Price has contended against all lawless and inhuman of Union principles while he was a member of the House.

There would differ from the Texan who exiled in the work of Booth?"

It is not full time for the Northern masses to open their eyes to the tendencies of such

"bloody instructions" and revolutionary Jacobines and Garrison and their followers in the South and the States are scarcely more than a year old.

It is not full time for all men in the North who retain their health and retain memories to look and see the same leading from the breast, and to hear the distinct rumblings of the jawing abyss that is ready to open beneath their feet?

Suppose for a moment that the "Southern Confederacy" had been established, and the Louisville-Bowling-Green-Nashville-Atlanta war of plunder, of destruction, and rain," so would the Union men of Kentucky revolt at the idea of taking part in a secessionists' convention, and siting "sheek by jowl" with the Champ Fugitives, the G-aeared Berry, the
